REFLECTION

Every year on the Sunday before Advent begins, the church celebrates Jesus Christ as the King of kings and Lord of lords. We celebrate his lordship over all creation.

This way of talking about Jesus could seem antiquated. After all, the long sweep of political history seems to be setting aside monarchies in favor of democracies. But Jesus isn't that kind of king, and his most gracious rule is about extending the grace and mercy of God to everyone. At a time when the world seems to be more chaotic than ever; in a moment when some celebrate the tyranny of power & might; we who are Christians do well to remember that we follow Jesus Christ, who is our ultimate guide & leader.

And what kind of reign does King Jesus seek? It's all right there in scripture. "Truly I tell you, just as you did to one of the least of these, you did unto me." In the kingdom of Jesus Christ, we work to include and lift up the vulnerable, the weak, the stranger, and the outcast. What a beautiful world Jesus invites us to inhabit with him!
